DEMOCRATS NAME
WINNING TICKET
FOR THE STATE LEGISLATURE

William Kieke, George C. Scheer and Rafael Garcia; Trio Upon Whom Community Will Unite Regardless of Party.

CONVENTION LAUNCHES
VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Crowd Hears Entertaining Addresses by Candidate for Corporation Commission and Secretary of State Lucero.

GEORGE C. SCHEER
RAFAEL GARCIA

These are the men nominated by the Democrats of Bernalillo county last night for representatives in the state legislature, and whose candidacy was launched in an enthusiastic convention. Today the election of all three men is being confidently predicted by those in a position to judge impartially the political situation in this country. The nominations in every case were unanimously made and by a rising vote of the entire convention.

Mr. Scheer, a member of the present city council, is one of the substantial business men of Albuquerque. He is the owner of a large furniture business and has demonstrated his practical business ability in his private career.

William Kieke, likewise the owner of a successful business house of long standing and high reputation, has won the confidence and esteem of Albuquerque through many years of successful, honorable private life. As city treasurer of Albuquerque he gave efficient service and has added to his reputation for ability and sound common sense in every public position he has been called upon to fill.

Rafael Garcia earned the enmity of the Republican gang and the respect and esteem of the people of the state during the last legislature when as a member of the lower house he stood solidly behind the policies of Governor McDonald, refused to stand by the Republican county salary grab bill and every other measure proposed by the oil machine; and earned a reputation for good judgment and political independence which will return him to the legislature.

The character of the Democratic nominees, together with the uncertainty surrounding the Republican legislative ticket, has caused a great many people today to predict overwhelming success for the Democrats even in a county which is normally overwhelmingly Republican.

It is stated by men who should know that political affiliations will count less locally in this election than ever before, that the people want representatives in the legislature in whom they can rely and on whom they can depend for right action and wise action. The standing and ability of the Democratic candidates, it is asserted, will attract a large majority of the voters of Albuquerque regardless of what their political connection may be.

Convention Gets Lively Start.

The convention last night started off with a lively row over the temporary organization of the convention in course of which two perfectly good states, prepared respectively by the delegates of the 12th and 26th precincts were smashed into little bits and the convention, after listening to some lively rowing from more or less excited orators, took its own course and elected Henry Lockhart chairman and Mrs. Harold C. Pierce, secretary. This organization later was made the permanent organization of the convention. The majority of the 26th precinct stated H. Moore Clayton for temporary chairman. The 12th precinct had picked Henry G. Coors, Jr., for the job. A delegate made a slip when nominations were called for and proposed District Attorney M. U. Vigil. Mr. Vigil refused to serve and O. N. Marron nominated Mr. Lockhart who also declined to serve, but who, after an exciting half an hour of balloting was elected and placed in the chair, in spite of himself. After Clyde Tingley had been elected temporary secretary and had refused to serve, Rev. E. E. Allison nominated Mrs. Pierce, who was elected unanimously.

Thereafter, the convention proceeded smoothly and with absolute harmony. The formalities of the usual convention were dispensed with. The committee's roll of delegates was accepted as the permanent membership of the convention; the organization and order of business was dispensed with by a motion continuing the temporary organization. The convention on a motion by L. A. McLean, approved the resolutions adopted by the last county convention, and also affirmed the platform adopted by the state Democratic convention. The resolution providing for the registration of the party ticket and emblem was adopted and the convention proceeded to its nominations.

O. N. Marron is a happy address nominated Mr. Scheer. Dr. S. L. Burton named Mr. Kieke in a brief, business-like tribute to a business man and Pitt Ross nominated Rafael Garcia. All the nominations were ratified by a unanimous rising vote.

The balance of the evening was devoted to two splendid addresses by Hon. Adolph F. Hill, Democratic candidate for the state corporation commission, whose first public address here made a distinctly favorable impression, and left the audience convinced that Mr. Hill is thoroughly up to all requirements of the position he seeks, and to an eloquent address in Spanish by Secretary of State Antonio Lucero.

Denise Chaves was chosen member of the state committee, the other member to be the chairman of the county central committee, who will be chosen at the organization meeting of that committee tonight.

CITY AND RAILROAD
CLASH OVER MAN WITH SMALLPOX

Health Department Compels Santa Fe to Care for Sick Passenger by Threatening to Quarantine Station.

As a Santa Fe railway patient, Michael C. Klausner, of Garden Plain, Kan., is under treatment at the detention hospital for smallpox. The Santa Fe, over whose line Klausner came to town yesterday afternoon, took charge of the man after a clash with the city health authorities. The clash came when Dr. L. G. Rice, the city physician, enforced the city ordinance requiring "any person" brisking into the city a sufferer from smallpox either to remove the patient or to care for him.

Klausner was a passenger on train No. 2, arriving here at 2:15 yesterday afternoon. He was on his way home to Garden Plain. When near here he began to feel ill and his ticket giving him a steamer privilege, he decided to get off and see a physician.

Arrived here, he went to Dr. G. S. McLandress' office in the Whiting building. Casual examination was sufficient to arouse Dr. McLandress' suspicion of the case, and he sent for Dr. Rice. After careful examination the two physicians agreed that Klausner had an undoubted case of smallpox.

Acting under the ordinance, Dr. Rice informed Dr. McLandress that it was a case for the Santa Fe to take care of. Dr. McLandress took Klausner to the detention hospital and notified J. W. Elder, the Santa Fe physician.

At 7 o'clock Klausner called off on the telephone from the detention house, and told him that no one had appeared to attend him and he felt the need of some supper.

Dr. Rice called up Dr. Elder and the latter is said to have informed the city that the Santa Fe would have nothing to do with the case.

That was the signal for action of the city physician. He told Dr. Elder that Klausner would be sent back to the station, and that the railroad management would be given a reasonable time to act. If, at the end of a reasonable time, the railroad maintained its attitude, the station would be placed under rigid quarantine. Dr. Rice said.

Klausner was accordingly taken back to the station. He was placed in an out-of-the-way corner of the smoking room, and Health Officer Tom Murin mounted guard to prevent anyone except railroad employees who knew what was the matter from coming in contact with him. Dr. Rice said today that Klausner's case was at such an early stage that the danger of infection was virtually negligible under the circumstances, and that keeping the man from contact with the general public obviated any possible danger of a spread.

Within half an hour after Klausner was taken back to the station the railroad changed front. The city was relieved of the case, and Klausner was taken back to the detention house as a Santa Fe charge. The railroad provided a nurse, and today it was said that the Kansas was getting along all right with the proper attention. His case is not regarded as serious.

It was said today that the Santa Fe, which formerly accepted the regulation regarding contagious cases brought into the city over its line, has lately shown an inclination to combat the ordinance. One result of last night's clash probably will be that the city and the railroad will thrash the matter out and come to a definite understanding as to who will or will not be responsible for the care of such cases.

Johnson, according to the papers filed, entered into a contract to represent the brick company as sales agent. He alleges that he placed orders for a certain quality of brick. Those orders, it is averred, were not filled.

Because of the company's alleged failure to fill the orders Johnson claims that he lost commissions and the opportunity to make commissions to such an extent that $25,000 represents the amount of damage he has sustained.

JUSTICE IN ROLE OF COMPLAINANT
AND COURT, TOO

Juan R. Zamora, justice of the peace of Precinct 13, will sit in the role of both complainant and judge this afternoon. Zamora today swore out a complaint before himself against Joseph Del Frate, an Old Town unknown. It is alleged that Del Frate has allowed women to loiter about his place. It is a question whether Zamora has any right to act as complainant in his own court.
